If you are looking to either dispose of or reduce your exposure to Tezos, I would be interested in taking them off your hands for the price you paid for them. Now I dont think they are transerrable yet as tokens qua tokens so the only way to literally conduct a sale at this time is to enter into a valid/binding contract to either (i) agree to sell your entire stash (i.e. provide the private key / password) in exchange for payment or (ii) agree to execute the transaction when the tokens become transferrable down the road. Obviously I think (i) is preferable, assuming the amount you acquired at ICO is within the limits of what I'm looking to buy.

Happy to hear thoughts/comments from anybody on the feasibility of this and whether there are other actions/steps to be taken to properly consummate this sort of Tezos is a new decentralized blockchain that governs itself by establishing a true digital commonwealth. It facilitates formal verification, a technique which mathematically proves the correctness of the code governing transactions and boosts the security of the most sensitive or financially weighted smart contracts.

I would also buy tokens at ico price but it's very risky when the other person has access to the private key as well.

I highly doubt anyone will sell their Tezos at ico price when the tokens are distributed.

I am looking to sell up to 80k XTZ.

In my view, your option 1 is not feasible as even if one surrenders the key, he will still be able to claim later and I guess the faster one will get the tezzies.

Option 2 is feasible if seller locks a sufficient amount of money in escrow to guarantee he will fulfill the contract later.

I also came up with this idea, which involves (minimal) foundation cooperation though: The seller signs a message with its tezos private key saying he gives up his tezos contribution in favor of a given Tezos address, and includes it in the bitcoin blockchain. Afterwards he can surrender the keys to the buyer. Once the network launches:

 - If both parties behave properly, buyer claims tokens and transaction is done.
 - If seller tries to claim anyway, buyer submits the seller's signed message as a proof he is the legitimate claimant.
 - If both parties submit a signed message as proof (both parties can sign anything), the one with the oldest proof of inclusion is the legitimate.
